Akha Homestay

Thailand

For one night during the week long program, you have the option to fully immerse yourself in the lifestyle of the Akhas by having a homestay with a local family. In this way, you will learn about their morning routine, how they sleep, how they cook, what they eat, etc. This experience will provide you with opportunities to learn the true way of life of the Akha people, firsthand.

Accommodation & Food

About the Accommodation

Some of you might like to choose this location for a night, to fully experience living in the village as a typical villager. If you go into this homestay, you will be sleeping on the floor on basic grass mats in wooden huts. You will be sharing space with a local family and will eat and live with them, even taking part in the completion of their daily chores.

During your stay, you will be sharing a room with other participants. Your "bed" will be a thin Thai mattress - don't expect much luxury! We recommend that you bring your own mosquito nets with you due to your rustic lifestyle at this location.

Cell phone reception is incredibly limited - you really are living in and experiencing rural Thailand at this location! You might be able to reach some reception at higher levels.

Food Arrangements

Local dishes are provided on site. Some families might even ask you to help out with the kitchen chores, so get prepared to learn some authentic Akha recipes!

Facilities

There is a small village shop but please remember this is an incredibly rural and authentic location - there are no ATMs, so please make sure you arrive to the location with some cash on you.

Mandatory Orientation Day

At this location there is no mandatory orientation day offered.

Activities & Events

No scheduled activities outside the program.

Sights & Surroundings

The village is incredibly secluded, there are no major attractions nearby.
