Umphang

Thailand

Umphang is the southernmost district of Tak Province in Thailand and is well known not only for its elephants, but also for its incredible landscapes and natural sceneries.

Set amid numerous national parks, mountains and lakes, you will find yourself surrounded by nature and beauty at its finest. It offers a peaceful environment and a perfect setting to see the elephants enjoy their natural habitat.

Accommodation & Food

About the Accommodation

Our accommodation here is at a wooden cabin guest house. There is even a bar to enjoy in the evenings!

Food Arrangements

Three healthy and delicious meals will be provided each day, carefully balancing Thai food for the Western tongue.

Facilities

There are Thai restaurants, bars, and shops located within walking distance from the accommodation as it's in the middle of a small yet lively village.

There is an ATM machine nearby at a 7/11.

Mandatory Orientation Day

At this location there is no mandatory orientation day offered.

Activities & Events

No scheduled activities outside the program.

Sights & Surroundings

Since our Umphang accommodation is set in such a beautiful and unspoilt natural environment, you can go for a trek and be in awe at the Thi Lo Su waterfall (you visit this on the program schedule), which is supposedly the largest waterfall in Thailand. While trekking in the area, you might also stumble across Karen hill tribe villages, originally Burmese people who have since spread across the Thai-Karen border.

Umphang village is home to 3 temples and you can always catch the monks and provide alms in the morning (around 6 am).
