Program Description

The demand for local English speakers has never been greater in Indonesia. Children may have the opportunity to learn English at school, however this is usually taught by a local Indonesian teacher and thus the children never really get to practice their conversational skills or hear native English being spoken. It is entirely up to you what you decide to teach, however there is a general syllabus for you to follow and examples of what previous participants have taught for you to continue with.

The aim of this project is to show students that learning English is fun and participants are encouraged to be creative with their methods of teaching – through games, songs, art, sport and music. If you are new to teaching, you may wish to team up with another participant, as two-three teachers in the classroom often works well with regard to confidence building and gaining greater control of the class whose enthusiasm often spills over into great excitement! It is entirely up to you what you decide to teach, however there is a general syllabus for you to follow and examples of what previous participants have taught for you to continue with. Please note that the teaching plan will be confirmed every Friday and you work will involve for about 4 hours in a day on the project.
